About You

The ideal candidate is someone who can minister in a co-operating parish context, connect deeply with the local community and a diverse congregation.

The Towns

Mallacoota is a small coastal town in Victoria's East Gippsland region, surrounded by Croajingolong National Park and approximately 520 kms by road from Melbourne. Its population of around 1200 is supported by tourism, fishing, hospitality and local services. The parish also serves Cann River, a smaller inland community with around 200 residents. The 2019–20 bushfires deeply affected Mallacoota and surrounding communities. The parish has helped support recovery through practical assistance and pastoral care.

The Facilities

The Co-operating Parish of Croajingolong is part of the Anglican Diocese of Gippsland. The parish operates an opportunity shop in Mallacoota which was renovated and reopened in 2020 following the bushfires.

The Church

The church is an ecumenical community-focused congregation, working with Anglican and Uniting Church traditions. The congregation values an emphasis on pastoral care, serving the community and evangelism. Key outreach ministries have included disaster recovery support, Scripture Union holiday mission and other opportunities for outreach and evangelism.
