We are seeking a part-time Diocesan Safe Ministry Officer (DSMO), based in our small Darwin Office. The successful applicant will support 15 Christian ministry units across remote communities and urban areas of Northern Territory, including in culturally and linguistically diverse environments. Reporting to the Ministry Development Officer, responsibilities will span three broad areas:

- Screening of clergy and laypersons as part of the Safe Ministry accreditation process;
- Supporting senior church leaders in implementing Safe Ministry protocols; and

In addition, the DSMO also provides secretarial support to Safe Ministry policy advisory and internal disciplinary committees, which may require occasional work outside of regular working hours. This position would suit someone looking for some flexibility in their work arrangements.

The successful candidate will have opportunity to use their initiative and drive to foster a safe ministry environment across the Diocese.

The successful applicant will be supportive of the ethos and practice of the Anglican Church of Australia and be able to demonstrate how that applies to the role.

Applications will be accepted only from candidates with an existing entitlement to work in Australia. To apply for the role, please send a one-page cover letter and your CV, which should contain three (3) references by email to amdo@ntanglican.org.au. Requests for further
