

Sam Chad, 4
Centro Dubbo

Sam Chad, 4, was sitting at Centro Dubbo with his mum and brother when the Daily Liberal snapped his photo.

Sam said when he grew up he wanted to be a shearer and his favourite animal was a lion because they roar and were strong.

Bev Winters and Cilla Ryan were considering a holiday when Daily Liberal photographer JOSH HEARD found them at the Harvey World Travel Expo. They are pictured with Norman of Bench International.

Send us your snapshots: email your pics to mail.liberal@ruralpress.com

Student leaders excited for conference

By ABANO B SAAD

FIVE budding student leaders will soon leave Dubbo to hone their leadership skills.

The Macquarie Anglican Grammar School school captains, vice-captains and captain of houses were all excited to head to Tamworth for the GRIP Student Leadership Conference next week.

Head of senior school and deputy principal Louis Stringer said the conference was an excellent way the school could support the students in their leadership positions.

"Last year it provided direction, encouragement and the skills for the student leaders to reach their goals," he said.

Mr Stringer said the students were elected as leaders after a lengthy process.

They first had to submit an application to the leadership role, then a panel interview and a speech to the school assembly on why they were the ideal leader followed.

Finally, the school students voted.

School captain Sam McCauley said he wanted to go to the conference so he could learn different leadership skills and how to put them into action.

"I want to develop new skills and time management so I can wisely balance my leadership activities with year 12," he said.

Schools in our Community

Mr McCauley said he was looking forward to rubbing shoulders with the other leaders and "bouncing off" different ideas with them.

His focus throughout the day conference, he said, would be teamwork among the leadership team and unity between all the students.

Captain of houses Sara Callan said she wanted to gain confidence from the leadership conference.

"My role is a new one and I want to develop it and make sure I leave a positive legacy," she said.

"I'd like to see us work together better as a leadership team."

The confidence she hoped to learn from the conference, she said, would help her greatly in public speaking.

abanob.saad@ruralpress.com

Head of senior school and deputy principal Louis Stringer, leaders Sara Callan, Ally Hooper, Jo Bell, Sam McCauley and Emma Fouracre are excited to go to the GRIP Student Leadership Conference.

Photo: ABANO B SAAD

Do you have an event you would like featured on our social pages?

SEND YOUR PHOTOS TO
www.mail.liberal@ruralpress.com

All submitted photos must be a JPEG image, approximately 500kb in size and including the following:

- Name, date and location of the function
- Name, contact number of person submitting photos
- Names of all people pictured in the photos

Please ensure photos are of suitable quality for publication and meet the specifications outlined above.

Hard copy photographs can be sent to:
Socials, c/o Daily Liberal, 216 Macquarie St, Dubbo NSW 2830

